FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1905.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,400

That dusty king again held undisputed possession of Main street this morning, and puny humans buckled to him and took his dust.

State Supt. Walter E. Ranger has been selected to be state superintendent of schools in Rhode Island at a salary 50 per cent higher than he has been receiving in Vermont. The principal of the Brattleboro high school has accepted a call to the Salem, Mass., high school at an increased salary over what the rich town of Brattleboro was paying. It is good to see Vermont educators appreciated.

An agency of the fire insurance underwriters association has been promising Bristol people "much lower" insurance rates if they will greatly improve their public water system. This all sounds very well, and probably reductions in rates would be made. But if Bristol's experience is the same as that of Rutland, the rates a little later on would be boosted to a higher point than ever. The rule in this city seemingly has been, the better fire-fighting facilities and fire protection, the higher insurance rates are ultimately.—Rutland News.

All of which reads like a tale that is told in Barre.

A LITTLE LAW ENFORCEMENT NEEDED.

It is time that cognizance is taken of the increasingly frequent serious accidents and fatalities resulting from the use of firearms by youngsters who, in some cases, have not reached their teens. In Rutland a twelve years old lad died yesterday from injuries received several weeks ago from a rifle shot, the rifle being in the hands of his brother, who is eight years old. The shooting was of course accidental. In most cases it is accidental, but that fact does not lessen the force of the bullet as it plows its way into the body of the victim, nor does it render the wound less likely to be fatal. Too often when someone is maimed or fatally wounded in this way we let it pass as a terrible thing and as something which could not have been avoided, saying what's done cannot be undone. But we forget that it is possible to prevent a repetition of the occurrence to a large extent, by going at the bottom of the matter. The firearms are placed in the hands of the youngsters by some person. In the case of very young children it is scarcely likely that their parents are so foolish as to allow them to toy with dangerous weapons, as they fully realize the liability of accident. Nor would a careful guardian permit the same thing.

In most cases then, where boys under fifteen years of age handle firearms it is someone else than the parents or guardians who place the weapons in their hands. And those other people are liable for punishment, under the law passed at the last session of the legislature. The law states that no person, other than a parent or guardian, shall "sell or furnish" firearms "or other dangerous weapon" to minors under the age of fifteen, except that instructors and teachers may furnish guns for military drill. The punishment imposed for violation of the law is not less than ten dollars for each offense. A little law enforcement just now will go a long way toward reducing the chances for such an accident as happened in Rutland and for those which are constantly cropping out in various parts of the state. Why not try a little enforcement?

One of the striking changes in the styles for this season is the length of the Coats. Two to four inches have been added to the garments. Here you will find the characteristic patterns that young men are not afraid of.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Getting Even.

"What horrid mornings all the aye!
Why is the rabble swearing?"
"They're taken by the collar there—
It's him they're chloroforming!"
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Trouble.

Dr. Wise—Yes, I had him for a patient once, just once.
Ascum—What was the matter?
Dr. Wise—He wouldn't pay his bills.
—Boston Transcript.

You Know Them.

Some men are fond of animals;
Their hearts are touched with pity.
We know a lot who'll sit up late
To fatten up a kitty.
—Boston Herald.

A Family Secret.

Crawford—I hear he does nothing but talk about his money.
Crabshaw—Yes. He tells everything about it except how he made it.—Tom Watson's Magazine.

Queer.

Now, here's a truth, though doubtless
It seems quite odd to say it—
One has to lose one's temper
Before one can display it.
—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Grocer's Revenge.

Everybody knows how the average business man is "worked" by the managers of picnics, excursions, festivals and the like, gotten up for the purpose of starting or increasing some "fund" of a semicharitable nature. By inserting his business card in the programme invariably printed on such occasions, he is expected, at least, to assist in defraying the expenses of the necessary advertising. He is appealed to on the ground that all his competitors will be represented in the programme, and he cannot afford to be left out.

A certain Mr. Skiles, a suburban grocer, was asked to have his card inserted in the programme of a picnic to be given by a local secret society at a popular resort 40 or 50 miles away.

"How much will it cost me?" he inquired.

"Only $2," replied the advertising manager.

"Hmph—only $2! How much space do I get for that?"

"One inch."

"Hmph—the whole of an inch! I can put any kind of an ad I want in that space, I suppose?"

"Certainly."

The grocer took a scrap of paper, wrote his advertisement on it, handed it to the manager, and in due time the programme appeared with this card in it.

"Beverly Skiles, Grocer, No. 537 Sparkland street, pays $2 for the use of this space. He thinks it is an outrageous price, inasmuch as all the groceries for this picnic were bought at some other store."

Mr. Skiles has always maintained that he got $2 worth of satisfaction out of this advertisement, if nothing else.—Rochester Herald.

The Village Grocer.

This sparkling melodrama of Green Mountain life, is to be the attraction at the opera house next Tuesday night. The dialogue and settings of this rural romance have been greatly improved since its first appearance here, and the comedy queen, Kathryn Brayham, has appeared in the role of saucy Daisy Hopkins for more than two hundred nights. The company supporting the star is asserted to be the strongest appearing here at popular prices this season. Special scenery is used in the production and high class specialties are introduced during the action of the play. Children accompanied by holders of a reserved seat ticket will be admitted free.

Fined $25 for Impure Food Sale.

Boston, May 5.—Arthur B. Ryan, formerly proprietor of the Purify Baking Powder Company of No. 7 Sherman street, Charlestown, was yesterday fined $25 for selling impure cream of tartar to John H. Corcoran, No. 647 Tremont street.

PATRIOTIC PICTURES.

First of Series, "Gen. Grant at the Battle of the Wilderness," Free With the Next Boston Sunday Globe.

Free with the next Boston Sunday Globe will be the first of a series of patriotic pictures with adjustable frames. These pictures are printed on substantial cardboard, in handsome colors. Each one tells a story of national greatness, and will help to instill into the youthful mind a loyal love of country.

The first of the series is "Gen. Grant at the Battle of the Wilderness." It is a reproduction of a famous painting made from a sketch drawn on the actual scene by the noted Boston artist, Charles W. Reed.

You certainly will want that picture. You will also want the entire series. Do not forget that each one has an adjustable frame.

Remember, too, that the next Boston Sunday Globe will have an important discussion by educators and practical men and women on the subject of educating boys and girls for the professions. Two other features, which will make everyone good-humored, are the funny articles by Chimie Fadden in up-to-date fun, and "Home-Run" Haggerty on baseball, and a half-page color picture of moving day at the home of the famous Kitty and Danny.

"Designs and Directions for Making Dresses for Little Boys and Girls," written by a practical woman, who knows what mothers need, will be a star article in the Household department of the next Boston Sunday Globe.

Don't you read the Boston Daily Globe, too? If not, you are missing the best features ever offered by a daily newspaper. Every day a serial story, a complete story, puzzles, poems, comic cuts, a daily lesson in history and a household department, where you can get an answer to any question you ask, all the sports and all the news. Order today.
